"I cannot give you the remotest idea To-day I work 300: to morrow cole 100 perhaps.
"But our principal difficulty," continued the Capairs, " is this biring, biring—this continual hiring of everything. In the month of January we paid 17,032 for the hire of tugs and scows, and this axes the money that should pay for sweepers. If the Department owned what it hires, there would be no trouble in keeping the streets clean. We pay 310 a month for the use of a scow. However, they are allowing me to get some made now. A sow costs from $3,600 to $4,300. I am getting fiteen new ones, two of which were finished last stell; and I have bought a new tow-boat. We pay 360 a day for a tow-boat. When I have replaced these scows and tugs with Department vessels, there will be more money to spend on street-invespers."

STRIKERS RESORTING TO VIOLENCE.

The derrick-men employed by a contractor in Sixty-fourth-st., between Madison and Fifth-aves., on. Wednesday struck for higher wages and quit work. The place of one of the strikers was filled by Henry Moran, who boards at No. 301 East Sixty-first-st. A number of the strikers live in the same neighborhood. On Wednesday night the door of Moran's room was burst open by six men, who dragged him from his bed and kicked and beat him. Then, threatening Moran with death if he made complaint, they left the house. One of the strikers, named Timothy Gleason, was arrested yesterday, but as Moran could not say positively that he was one of his assailants, Justice Murray, sitting at the Fifty-seventh Street Police Court, discharged him. Warrants were issued by the same Justice for five other men.

The Board of Police yesterday adopted a series of resolutions offered by Commissioner Voorhis, warmly praising the late inspector, John McDermott. A request was made by his brother inspectors and Superintendent Walling for permission to put collection boxes in the police stations in which to receive gifts for the benefit of his widow and shidren, whom after twenty years service in the Police Department he left in poverty. The desued permission was granted, President French replying warmly to some technical objection raised by Commissioner Voorhis that a Board which helped to collect money to send 3,000 miles over the sea could well afford to practice some charity nearer home.

On motion of Commissioner Nichols Captain Byrnes, at present in command of the Detective Squad, was raised to the rank of Inspector, Commissioner Voorhis voting no. He will remain in his present charge until his successor has been appointed. It is understood that Inspector Syrnes is both to be promoted out of his present place, A recontion was passed condemning the police boat sincers as until for further service. A DANISH EMIGRANT'S SUICIDE. The body of a young man much decomposed, drifted aslore at Pier No. 15, East River, on last Monlay. It lay, unrecognized in the Morgue for some aye and was then buried in the Potter's Field. Coroner Ellinger took charge of the case. The discovery of two books, one printed and the other fled with written notes, in the dead man's clothes, as since led to his identification as a young Danish migrant. H. Dyrendahl by name, who for some perse values eought work in this city. He was a year by trade.

The printed book is a Danish-English lexicon, in hich are put down the addresses of places where sower sower sought to obtain work. The note-book filled with recipe of use to a dyer in his trade and entimental effusions showing that the writer was no victim of a secret sorrow apparently caused by an death of his awestheart. Some very melancholy errees are dedicated to "Miss Christrap," and their cue make it appear probable that the young emirant in a fit of despair sought death in the river.

RECEPTION AT THE MANHATTAN CLUB.

POLITICS FXCLUDED FROM CONVERSATION-F. W. STOUGHTON'S CONFIDENCE AND A. S. HEWITT'S

The monthly social reception of the Manhat tan Club, which was held Thursday night, was largely stender. But few Republicans were present although it was stated that a large number had been invited. Out of respect to their Republican guests there was no speech-making, and politics generally were not often brought into the conver-sation. "This is not a Grant beem, but a Tilden doom," said one of the members to a TRIBUNE reporter, " but politics are tabooed to-night, so we'll say nothing about it." Not even the occurrences at Syracuse elicated any congratulatory remarks, but the Tilden men wore a universal self-satisfied look that spoke louder than

After the cellation Senator Kernan proposed the health of Judge Jeremiah Black, and said that he had been requested by all the Democrats to express a wish that his voyage to Europe, on which he starts next Satur-day, might be prosperous, and his return safe and speedy. Judgo Black, who seemed to be the hon of the evening. said in response that he felt in the position of a certain Yankee much given to swearing. He once met with an accident which it was expected would bring out this accomplishment, and his friends gathered to listen. "It is no usr." he said, "I can never do justice to the subject." For the same reason Mr. Black felt himself unable to reply to their good wishes.

"Are you running away for fear of the election, Judge ?" asked the reporter. "Oh, no, I shall be back before that."

"To vote for Tilden !"
"To vote, sir, for the nominee of the party."

"And will that be Tilden !" "The eventful and inexplicable course of American politics who can foretell ? It is impossible to venture an opinion, but-"

And at this moment Mr. Stoughton came up and broke into the current of the conversation. After a talk with Mr. Black, he said to the reporter: "I am for Grant. And Grant will be nominated, and Grant will be elected. There is nothing on Grant will be elected. There is nothing on earth as sure as that." Senator Kernan joined the group, and said he thought it would be unwise to say anything upon suon a sabject at present; and Abram S. Hewrit replied to the reporter's questions with a shrug of the shoulders and a deep sigh.

Among those present at the gathering were Judges Larned, Pract, Larremore, Benedlet, Black, Mider, Rapallo, Earl, Curtis, Dauforth Lawrence, Sandford E. Church, Rufus B. Cowing, James Sheridan, Gilbert M. Speir, Wilson G. Hunt, J. B. Barrett, O. E. Parmer, Judge George M. Van Hoeson, ex-Judge Barbour, Henry L. Chnton, District Attorney Phelps, W. R. ANXIOUS FOR A FREE CONVENTION.

ACTION OF REPUBLICANS OPPOSED TO THE UNIT RULE AT CHICAGO.

The Executive Committee of the Republican Central Campaign Club, met at Science Hall Thursday evening for organization. A. J. Ditten hoefer, who was chosen chairman, in a brief address said that the great danger that threat-ened the Republican party was that the "unit rule" should be established in the National Convention. It was plain that it was the plan of the third-term managers to ecure a sufficient majority to adopt the unit rule, thus candidate or another. In this way the delegates would be prevented from expressing their real convictions. If the nomination should be made in this way, it would not be regular, and it would not be binding upon the party. [Applause.]

Sheridan Shook proposed that primaries should be held on May 3 in each of the Assembly Districts of the city; that three delegates should be chosen in each district to go to Chicago, not to contest for places in the Conven go to Chicago, not to contest for places in the Convention, but merely to convey to that body the real public sentiment of New-York. Thurlow Weed had been seen Thursday, and he had said that he would represent his district. Ex-Governor Morran was also right on the Question, and doubtless would allow his name to be used. B. F. Manierro suggested that after the deloxates were chosen, a public meeting should be held in Steinway Hall, to get an expression of opinion from the best men of the city. The delegates would thus go to the Convention with influence, and the Convention, know-held the second of the convention with influence, and the Convention, know-held the second of the convention of the New York Kennikeans. Convention with influence, and the Convention, knowing that it was essential that New-York Republicans should be united, would at least treat them with respect. Both propositions were adopted. The chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of three on primaries and arrangements at Chicago, and a committee of seven on a public meeting. The chair named the following as members of the latter committee: Messis. Hastic, Naumann, Goddard, Palmer, Pu lman, Manierre and Limbeck.

RENATOR JACOBS ON TILDEN. THE CHAIRMAN OF THE SYEACUSE CONVENTION RISES TO EXPLAIN-TILDEN NOT HIS MAN.

FROM THE REGULAR CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE. ALBANY, April 23 .- The speech of Senator Jacobs, late charman of the Syracuse Convention, in opposition to the nomination of Samuel J. Tiden for sident was still the subject of general conversation in the Legislature to-day. Senator Sessions, commentn it before the Sonate, said : "The Sonator ! like a fly in melasses, the more he squirms and tries to explain that speech the less freedom he will have to get out of the position he has placed himself in." Although Senator Jacobs's remarks yesterday in part were not very frank, he did not take advantage of this fact to-day. but in reply to some remarks of Senator Woodin's, reiterated his opposition to Mr. Tilden. His expression of opinion to-day was far more unmistakuble regarding its meaning than yesterday. This was due chiefly to an editorial in The Argus of to-day, declaring that Senator Jacobs's speech of resterday was not meant to be taken in a serious sense; that it was only part of a jocular debate. Mr. Manuing, publisher of The Argue, is Mr. Til-den's right hand man in the interior of the State, and it was therefore natural that he should try to explain away Senator Jacobs's declaration. It is an open secret that an arrangement was made between Senator Woodin and Senator Jacobs that the latter should be given an opportunity to reply to The Argus editorial and also to show to Democrats throughout the Union precisely where the chairman of the Syracuse Convention stood regarding the nomination of The opportunity was secured by Senator Jacobs offer ing, of all things in the world, a resolution that the bills reducing the pilotage fees in New-York Harbor should be made a special order. Senator Woodin blandly opposed the resolution, and then in a circuitous manner charged Senator Jacobs with political fickleness, and in proof of it read The Argus editorial to the Senate. Senator Jacobs with seeming indignation then replied as ator Jacobs with seeming indignation then replied as follows:

Mr. President: I presume there is no class of men in this country who have been appressed by explicit more than the plots of the State of New-York. For the last forty years they have been an incorporated body; acting under the laws of this State and no obedience to them. They come here to-day for justice, and desire no delay m this matter. If they are to be absolutely destroyed why delay action? The Sentor from the XXVIth (Mr. Woodin), in answer to my proposition that the plot question be discussed to-day reads from The Argus an editorial in relation to a matter entirely toreign to this subject. He speaks of some remarks that passed here yesterday, and he speaks of them as if they were of very grave consequence; why I cannot imagine. I am simply an individual sitting here as a Sensior, and my connection with the Convention at Syneuse is a matter of no consequence to the gentleman or the party he represents. What I did there is a matter of no consequence to him or to has political friends; here or throughout the State.

In that Convention, if I may be permitted to say if, I saw toat the rights of all parties were protected. As its chairman, I represented un interest, and if the Senator has done use the compliment—he had not done it yesterman, I represented un interest, and if the Senator has done use the compliment—he had not done it yesterman, of reading my speech on taking the chair as chairman of the Syracuse Convention, he will see that I advocated the claims of no man for any nomination to the Presidency; for I acted fairly as chairman of the Syracuse Convention, and yet preside over a deliberative body, and be entirely impartial. It was very difficult, for my own associations in this body have somewhat interfered with my judgment—I mean in the Assembly.

Now the speech that I made yesterday seems to hav attracted some attention; why, I do not exactly know; why, I cannot understand. I read it over very care-

Assembly.

Now the speech that I made yesterday seems to hav aitracted some attention; why, I do not exactly know; why, I cannot understand. I read it over very carcully. I sent to the stenourspher for his notes and I saw nothing in them which ought to excite the feeling o cursosity of gentlemen. If I were a man of more prominence, I could understand why a speech of that kind might attract attention, but I am not I rut no party. I control no cancus, I govern no great set of men. Take that speech; I said certain things. I stand by every word I said. Applanae. I as a delegate, and a great many who are associated with me, go to the Cincinnati Convention pledged to no man. And I will say more than that. It was the unanimous sense of the gentlemen who had control of the Syracuse Convention, as men have control of ant convention, that those delegates should all go unpledged and free. I would not have gone there as a delegate pledged to Mr. Tilden or to Mr. Anyone clee. Now can you find in my speech one single word azunas Mr. Tilden I say this, that if when we reach Chedianati we find that Mr. Tilden is the most available and the strongest man, we will support him; and if we are satisfied when we meet the Democracy of the country there that he is not the strongest man. We will leave that the is not the strongest man. But when I can the bemocracy at Cincinnati, and when I hen them talk and find their opinions are different from my own, I propose to subordinate my opinion to theirs; but at present my opinion is my own property. In the mean time, as my friend on the right suggests, the poor pilotare suffering. He then withdrew his motion, and the matter wa

A BUSY LEGISLATIVE SESSION. THE PUBLIC BURDENS BILLS ORDERED TO A THIRD

READING. FROM THE REGULAR CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE. ALBANY, April 23 .- Mr. Varnum reported favorably from his Committee on Cities to-day the "Public Burdens" bills, and succeeded, without debate, in having them ordered to a third reading in the Assembly. These bills give the Board of Estimate and Appor conment power to reduce vastly the expense of carrying on the departments of New-York city's government, and also to cut down the fees of judicial officers. Mr. Husted also, in the same quiet manner, pushed toward becoming a law the Senate bill creating a State Board of Health. He asked unanimous permission to make a speech, which being granted, he said that when doctors greed all mankind must agree with them concerning the wisdom of doing a certain thing. This thing was the establishment of a State Board of Health, which was approved by the medical profession universally and by ganitary authorities all over the Union. He would ask unanimous consent that the bill should be ordered to a third readure. No voice was arised in opposition, and the Speaker duly announced that the bill had been ordered to a third readure. The Assembly again passed its bill nuthorizing the authorities of New-York to expend $200,009 in enlarging the eew Farmers' Market, on the site of Fort Gansevoert. The bill had come from the Senate, where some amondments to it had been made; so that the bill now goes to the Governor.

The Assembly also passed the Senate bill regarding foreign fire and marine insurance companies. This bill permits these companies to do business in this State if they have a paid up capttal of $500,009; the present law requiring them to have all their capital paid up. The bill was favored by merchants in New-York who companies that they cannot get all their goods insured.

The Senate passed one of the Hepburn Railway Committee's bills that came from the Assembly, regulating the voting by stock and bondholders of railrond corporation. The Assembly passed its bill authorizing the expenditure of $25,000 upon the parks on Fourth-ave, between Sixty-seventia and Ninety-sixth-sia, Kew-York Mr. Husted ppr-uaded the Assembly to make Senator the wisdom of doing a certain thing.
